

Thurs. Nov. 18
10 am.

Dear Dad:

We received your letter yesterday. Do you are really seeing things and going places aren't you. Gosh I'd love to be there too. I'll bet the sights are beautiful.

We were glad to hear you are all right and still in this country.

Mom's arm is getting along pretty well. I've still can't use it - of course. but she does very well with her left hand.

Mrs. Young does our washing + ironing. Between us we try to keep the house clean.

Tomorrow we are having a little shinner at our house for Dot. We have borrowed the ice-cream freezer we didn't get while you were home - we are going to have ice-cream + cake - maybe coffee - - .

We had a little bit of snow

the other day, about a cup full - just enough to say "it's snowing!"

Jim had to go down to the exam board again this morning. Seem they lost his 'blood sample' & they want another!

Last night I clean the woodwork and walls + stuff like that there in the bathroom - tonight we are going to wipe off the woodwork down stairs - it isn't dirty - so it won't take long.

Dad is taking the afternoon off to take mom to the doc. and then he & Jim are going to wipe off the kitchen walls & woodwork. Some fun!

I haven't heard from Bud since the week before you came home! Santa wonder what he is up to! I've a pretty good idea! - There isn't much to say Bud-not now anyway. you might not even receive this.

Havent seen any real good shows lately.

Heard Richard Crooks about 2 weeks ago. Very good! He sure has a nice voice.

We Sammit heard a word from the folks in Cleve. My on get a cute card from Aunt Annie - 'Sorry about your accident' one - but no word about Aunt Maggie. you'd think they would drop a card at least.

Well Bud, I guess I close for now, and hope you get to stay in that beautiful country for a while. or else get close to home -

So long for now + don't eat too much.

(over)

as always James

P.S. If Dante Alense left the north pole and started for the equator + Mac West left the south pole heading for the same place - who would get there first?
